Rønnau + FurnID

In 2008 the design trio Anders Rønnau and FurnID - at the time consisting of Bo Strange and Sara Vinther Martinsen, joined together to create a table for Fritz Hansen. Their quest was to create a futuristic table even more democratic than their inspiration, the classic Super Elliptical™ table. The result of the collaboration is shown as the U-nite™ table, which is perfect for uniting with friends and family.

Anders Rønnau is originally a physicist, but is also educated as a furniture designer at the Danish Design School in Copenhagen, where he studied together with the FurnID duo. It was here their collaboration first started, and he has later joined FurnID in several projects.

Today FurnID has yet another designer on board, Morten Kjær Stovegaard. The trio seeks to create relevant and inventing design which captures the imagination and thus makes a difference.

Together they offer knowledge and experience, each within their field - space, furniture and industrial design. This unique combination of skills has resulted in a wide range of designs from mountain rescue devices to engagement rings.
